"Early to rise, early to rise, will make little bunny boys healthy and wise," sang Mrs. E. J. H. at the foot of the stairs. And then Billy Bunny lifted up his left hind leg and his right ear, and he wiggled his nose forty times less once, and after that he washed his face and whiskers, and parted his hair down his back nice and smooth, he went down to eat his breakfast of carrot tops and raspberries, which his kind mother had made from the fruit that grew in the old Bramble patch. And then, on his way to school, he met a little girl, who was just the right length so that she could look into the camera which he was holding up. And he didn't tell his legs apart from the legs of the camera, only the camera had three and the Crane only two.

"I'll take seven," said the little rabbit. "That's my lucky number. I want to send one to Mr. Lucky Left-hindfoot, he's my Uncle Lucky. And one to my friend, the circus elephant. And one to my best friend, it will make Daddy Fox mad to think he wasn't here at the same time, for he's always trying to catch me."

And just then who should peep in through the window, but Daddy Fox himself. And in the next story you shall hear what happened, for something's going to happen, I will tell you right now.

FOOTVILLE

Footville, March 21.—Mrs. Raymond Peterson of Port Adison has been a recent guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. Will Timm. Mrs. Peterson came to attend the play (which was given for the Red Cross) Monday evening.

A farewell reception was given on Friday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lacey for Elder Larimore and family, who expect to leave the latter part of the week for their new home in southwestern Missouri. Tens of thousands of people were present. Very nice refreshments were served and a fine program was presented with a fine speaker, Elder Spencer making the presentation speech.

Neighbors and friends of Roy Silverthorn of Orfordville, who have been visiting here, are reported as doing well.

A son, recently came to gladden the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garde. Both mother and babe are reported as doing well.

A meeting was held Tuesday for the purpose of giving the citizens an opportunity of voting for or against incorporation, and the vote as counted was 10 for incorporation and 46 against.

The five-act comedy, "The Deacon," given in the hall Monday evening was a decided success in every particular. The play was given by home talent and the actors did their parts so well that it would be difficult to say which did the best. The fact that the company has been asked to repeat the entertainment is sufficient to show the entertainment was most successful. The play was attended by a full house, and after deducting expenses about $80 was turned over to the local chapter of the Red Cross.

Miss Esther Reimer came up from Beloit Monday for a short stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garde.

The local chapter of the Red Cross wishes to thank the Footville home talent company for so generously donating the entire proceeds of Monday evening's entertainment for the benefit of the local organization.

Smart Day motored here from Evansville for a short visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Day.

Mrs. J. K. Bernis was a visitor Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Spencer.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society met this afternoon with Miss Lack, a good attendance being present.

Mrs. Laura Gooch wishes to announce that she has a choice line of wall paper, paints, tins and varnish, and would be pleased to have her patrons call and see our stock, or drop a card and she will call and show her goods.

CENTER

Center, March 21.—There is very much to hope so. The warm and dry the past two days has dried the roads and the roads are in fair condition once more.

The question of operating a cheese factory here the coming year is being favorably considered. John Marty of Broadhead makes the proposition.

Mrs. Lottie Fisher is wearing a smile these days, owing to the safe arrival of a little grand-daughter, named Ellen, who arrived at the home of her son Glen March 14th at Hannibal, Missouri. Center friends extend congratulations to all parties.

Milton News

Milton, March 21.—Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of Milton, a religious service was held for all the college students in the college chapel on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of last week. The first meeting of the series had for its speaker the Rev. Mr. Pearson of Janesville. The meeting was opened by a rousing hymn led by Prof. L. H. Stringer of the college. A word of prayer by the speaker was followed by two musical numbers, the first given by an octet composed of college men; the second by a chorus of college girls. The theme of Mr. Pearson's sermon was "The Challenge of the World to the College Student for Christian Service." Prof. H. M. Barbour let in prayer and the meeting came to an end.

Rev. Mr. L. R. Howard was the speaker for the second meeting on Thursday night. Mr. Howard is from Whitewater. His topic was "An Appeal to the College Students of America and the ladies' chorus both rendered a number. Mr. Pearson again spoke on Friday evening, his topic being "Giving Our Lives to the Master." J. Thorngate, president of the Y. M. C. A. of Milton, presided throughout the series. They were all well attended and it is believed that a new spirit of Christian fellowship has been instilled into the body.

Oratorical Contest Held.

On Monday evening of this week the four literary societies of Milton college held their fifteenth annual oratorical contest. The chapel was filled to overflowing. Bert Garey of the Oropahing Lyceum and Miss Pearl Gardner of the Miltonians and Clifford Thomas of the Philos took second place in the contest. The first speaker was Miss Marjorie Burdick, whose topic was "What College Means for Women." She was followed by Miss Helen Shaw, whose subject was "A Plea for Independent Thinking." She was followed by Miss Pearl Gardner, who spoke on "What of the Future?" The Working Child.

After a short interlude, during which the trio furnished music, Charles Hyne opened the men's program with a speech entitled "What of the Small Nation?" The first prize speech by Mr. Gary followed. Mr. Garey spoke on "Military Training After the War." Mr. Harold gave a strong speech, "The Religion of Service," in which he told what the Y. M. C. A. is doing "over there." The contest closed by "A Plea for Alsace-Lorraine" by Clifford Thomas. The judges were Principal F. O. Holt of Edgerton, the Rev. Hamilton of Milton Junction and Miss Fitzgerald of Janesville.

ACTUAL WORK.

There is many a chapter in the life of Janesville citizens that is best left unwritten. Many a slip, and an error on the part of some, that need not be recorded. This world is full of temptations, and if the young and misguided individuals can be spared from the temptations of this world, they will be better off. To the parents belong the burden of this teaching, but to the unfortunate girl and boy who have no parents, or whose parents are indifferent to their welfare, who must look to some outside source for inspiration, where do they go? The Y. M. C. A. offers a refuge and teaching for the boys, but where are the girls to go?

This is the problem. Janesville has been asked to make contributions to this end that find for war purposes, for the work in this country for the boys and girls, and set right here at home we have a problem that needs solution. It is one which must be faced with determination and decision, and no half ways should be permitted. Janesville has not a Young Women's Christian Association, but it has a Janesville Center that is solving this problem as far as it is able, and will do more, if given the support of the city.

These ladies who have undertaken this work have been untiring in their labor and have given both of time, experience and money, and now they need more than money, they need support. They need financial aid. To continue this work is going to take funds and the merchants, with the constant drain upon their revenues, should not be asked to support and finance an institution that is essential to the moral welfare and convenience of the community, as long as we have a city government.

The new council will probably be asked to shoulder the greater responsibility and it is time the future members of that organization are cognizant of the conditions that exist. Chapters of human life could be written of this wonderful work accomplished by this Janesville Center, and if need be they will be made public. It is time to reward these women by assuming the responsibilities of this work and also increase the facilities of this wonderful organization in which every woman in the city is interested.

Within the past twenty-four hours the ladies in charge of this work have saved one. If not two young ladies, from the "paws" you can not tell it anything else of unscrupulous men. It is not worth a year's support alone, and the citizens should appreciate the work this organization is accomplishing in this community. It offers a "home" for many girls who are employed during the day; it gives hundreds of others a place to gather and meet their friends and is a resting place for the countless visitors the merchants bring to the city. Is it worth while? Yes.

FAIR TO FAIR.

This state is fair to face with a serious question as regards the future classification as to loyalty. Look over the tables that show the vote cast on Tuesday last for the La Follette republican nominee for United States senator and you will find that he obtained his majorities in counties that are normally democratic and also inhabited for a large part by persons of German sympathies. Take it right here at home in Rock county and the same condition exists. There is but one answer. Blood is stronger than water and that the love for the "Fatherland" has been so instilled into their minds even unto the second and third generations, that it is hard to uproot the evil that bids fair to wreck us.

Not only in the state, but right here at home, are we face to face with a serious problem. We must overcome this element—if not by reason, to see the crooked of faces, their ways, their positions (faces), as you would a snake, or cut the claws of the bird of prey and make them harmless. This is a just war. The United States has entered it and we must stand behind the federal government. It is no time to cry wolf now. Too late, the fox is upon us. Our boys—our Wisconsin boys, our Rock county boys, our Janesville boys—are in trenches "somewhere over there." We must play the part of the hero and curb this attempted disloyalty at its inception.

One way to do this is to select a loyal United States senator. A man who will work for the best interests and the re-education of loyalty in the state of Wisconsin. This man apparently is Irvine Leland. His total vote is more than his two democratic candidates combined and he returns show that the democratic voters voted for Thompson, consequently his election will mean a conclusive solution of the problem and a rebuke to the anti-loyal feeling that has been rampant in the state ever since this war began.

A vote for Leland is a vote for a loyal United States senator.

The old debating societies used to spend long hours discussing whether the sword or the pen was the greater. About now the hoe counts more than either of them.

It looks as if the pro-German politicians would soon be given a permanent relief from the cares of office and an uninterrupted opportunity to enjoy the comforts of home.

It is denied that the Russians have accomplished anything, as they have succeeded in establishing their reputation as the biggest fools in the world.

The man who kicks on nice fresh war bread may be the son of the man who was mighty glad to get the tough old hard-tack of civil war days.

The people who have conscientious scruples against fighting have no scruples against living in a country that their fathers died to save.

It isn't so much fun operating a German submarine as it was in the days when they could stay on top of the water and drown women and children at their leisure.

One could eat the lower priced eggs with even more satisfaction if he only felt sure a lot of the food speculators were ruined by their fall in price.

The Germans are getting some moral scruples about the use of poisonous gas now that they are getting more of it than they are giving.

One can't feel wholly despairing of the fate of the American republic when the bull teams are going south for training as usual.

Those German raiders with American bullets inside of them no longer consider our country a negligible factor in this war.

Now if we had only followed the advice of the wise and superior pacifists about a year ago, we might now be where Russia is.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

GET BUSY.

(Published by request of the National War Garden Commission, Washington, D. C.)

Perhaps you think your lot is hard and that the fates are hard and cruel because you're short of flour and lard, and have no coal to use as fuel. Perhaps you growl when meat gives out because it's used to fight the German, and think that war is just about what it was called by Old Man Sherman. Perhaps you're right. But what of that, you poor, misguided, grouchy, duffer? Just let me tell you something that you don't know what it is to suffer. Compare your lot with those who go to blaze the trail for Freedom's garden, and you'll quickly come to know that you're the folks who bear the burden. So drop your grouch and be a man, and help to win the fight for Freedom. We've got the troops; now we must plan to furnish food enough to feed 'em. Get out and make a garden plot, and work it like a greedy miser. Grow in your yard and vacant lot mountains meant to tick the Kaiser.

ADD ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT. . . . Seems that the state of Wisconsin is not to be added to the German empire just yet.

When Kaiser Bill picked up the Bolshevik proposition he picked up a piece of sticky newspaper and cannot get it off his hands.

The Bolshevik government is one which is unwilling to protect those who do not subscribe to its doctrine and methods, and unable to protect those who do.

"Peace, peace, let us have peace!" Quote Bill, with a face grave and stern.

You can see we have won. Are you really began. So let's chuck it while I'm going strong.

There is many a weary wife in this world who has listened to a war grouch for months, and is willing to sign a separate peace at any time.

The legislature of New Jersey has just adjourned after passing 300 new laws, and still not making it an offense for a mosquito to stab a sleeping dweller.

WHO'S WHO IN LITERATURE.

It is revealed in a New York letter that the book, "Great Love Stories of the Bible," by Billy Sunday, was not written by Billy Sunday at all.

New York writers are rolling this delicious morsel of gossip under their tongues and are trying to guess who wrote the book, which is one of the six best sellers. There seems to be a unanimous opinion that no matter who wrote the book, the immortal Bill will probably garner most of the proceeds.

The name of the real author is awaited with considerable interest. The book created a sensation when it appeared, and was accorded several miles of favorable newspaper comment.

These are lean days for autocrats. The pulpinator porter is about to be deprived of his job.

See the Germans have taken Janesville. . . . will make a small bet that the Bolshevik removed to Jan before the Germans got there.

Dr. Edward Hickey Bradford, of the Harvard Medical School, says men are descended from lizards which crawl on their bellies. He is probably referring to Russians—not Americans.

Sea Coast Sand Binder.

Californians say there is no sea coast sand binder that surpasses in effectiveness Ammophila arenaria, sea bent grass. It has done more to hold the shifting dunes of Golden Gate park, San Francisco, than any other agency.

Political Parties.

Thursday was the last day, according to law, allowed for the filing of nomination papers for candidates for the various elective offices to be held on at the regular election to be held on April 2.

The above is the complete city and ward tickets which will be put before the voters at the time of election.

In several instances there will be no contest as only one candidate has entered the field for the office. Charles L. Valentine will be elected mayor of the city as no opposing candidate has filed papers. In the fifth ward John J. Dulin and Arthur G. Jones were the only two candidates for alderman.

In the first, second and third wards a lively contest is in sight with six, four and five candidates respectively for the offices. In the fourth ward there are three candidates.

The present city clerk and city treasurer will be candidates for re-election and each will have the opponent. James B. Worthington will have as his opponent Karl Reifenberg while George W. Muenchow will run against David W. Barless.

The city clerk is now busy making plans for the printing of the ballots so that everything will be in readiness for the election on April 2.

Although the question has been discussed by many of the voters in the city, no plans have been made for the determination of what length of terms the aldermen of each ward shall serve. One man in each ward should be elected for one year and the other for two years. It is possible that the council, when it convenes, shall vote that the candidate having the largest number of votes be given the long term, or that drawing may be made.

Under the regular election laws of the council the mayor and the city clerk at this election will be elected for a term of one year while the city treasurer and the city attorney will run for the two-year term. When the commission was instituted here, the city clerk and the mayor had only served one year, with the result that the men who are elected to fill those places now will serve the unexpired terms.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

LITTLE GIRLS

God made the little boys for fun, for rough and tumble times of play.

He made their little legs to run and race and scamper through the day.

He made them strong for climbing trees, he suited them for horns and drums.

And filled them full of revelries so they could be their father's chums.

But then He saw that gentle ways must also travel from above.

And so, through all our troubled days, He sent us little girls to love.

He knew that earth would never do, unless a bit of heaven it had.

Men needed eyes divinely blue to toll by day and still be glad;

A world where only men and boys made merry would in time grow stale.

And so He shared His heavenly joys that faith in Him should never fail.

He sent us down a thousand charms that decked our ways with golden curls.

And laughing eyes and dimpled arms. He let us have His little girls.

They are the tenderest of His flowers, the little angels of His flock.

And we may keep and call them ours, until God's messenger shall knock.

The bliss to us is the gentleness and caress and strengthen us for every deed.

And happy should that mortal be whom God has trusted through the years.

To guard a little girl and see that she is kept from pain and tears.

SUCCEEDS REDMOND AS IRISH LEADER

so that everything will be in readiness for the election on April 2.

Although the question has been discussed by many of the voters in the city, no plans have been made for the determination of what length of terms the aldermen of each ward shall serve.

One man in each ward should be elected for one year and the other for two years. It is possible that the council, when it convenes, shall vote that the candidate having the largest number of votes be given the long term, or that drawing may be made.

Under the regular election laws of the council the mayor and the city clerk at this election will be elected for a term of one year while the city treasurer and the city attorney will run for the two-year term.

When the commission was instituted here, the city clerk and the mayor had only served one year, with the result that the men who are elected to fill those places now will serve the unexpired terms.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

LITTLE GIRLS

God made the little boys for fun, for rough and tumble times of play.

He made their little legs to run and race and scamper through the day.

He made them strong for climbing trees, he suited them for horns and drums.

And filled them full of revelries so they could be their father's chums.

But then He saw that gentle ways must also travel from above.

And so, through all our troubled days, He sent us little girls to love.

He knew that earth would never do, unless a bit of heaven it had.

Men needed eyes divinely blue to toll by day and still be glad;

A world where only men and boys made merry would in time grow stale.

And so He shared His heavenly joys that faith in Him should never fail.

He sent us down a thousand charms that decked our ways with golden curls.

And laughing eyes and dimpled arms. He let us have His little girls.

They are the tenderest of His flowers, the little angels of His flock.

And we may keep and call them ours, until God's messenger shall knock.

The bliss to us is the gentleness and caress and strengthen us for every deed.

And happy should that mortal be whom God has trusted through the years.

To guard a little girl and see that she is kept from pain and tears.

JANESVILLE WILL VOTE ON LICENSE QUESTION

Papers Containing Over Three Hundred Signatures Filed With City Clerk at 11:30 This Morning

Papers, calling for a wet and dry election in this city on Tuesday, April 2nd, were filed with city clerk James J. Woodhams at 11:30 this morning by Arthur M. Fisher. Two papers contained over three hundred signatures of qualified voters of this city. The first petition and by one of the most prominent citizens of the city, and the second by a group of voters who are known to be in the majority. The papers were filed with the city clerk at 11:30 this morning. The following is a list of the names of the voters who signed the papers: (List of names follows in columns, partially illegible due to image quality)

NEW SLOGAN FOR THE BOOK DRIVE WILL BE USED IN CAMPAIGNING

Two Hundred Books Have Been Donated, According to Miss Egan, 'the Librarian.'

"Bring your books to the library this week." This is the appeal of Miss Mary Egan, librarian, who has charge of the collecting of books in the campaign for the soldiers in the camps and in France. "The country-wide drive for books is being pushed forward this week, for the purpose of supplying all camps, cantonments, hospitals with a library. Many of these camps already have a library, but others are needed," she said, "and we are urging all to send their old books now and not wait until spring cleaning."

"The library association is buying some books but they are chiefly non-fiction. This is largely due to the fact that the gift books going to the camps cover most of the general needs of the soldiers, and the shortage occurs in the field of military science, engineering, history, travel, poetry, war narratives, and other topics connected with the war itself. Every camp's library in the country has surprised headquarters by its requests for books on these subjects, and on the trades, business, agriculture, and the subjects in which the soldiers were engaged before they went into the camps. This means that these men, many of whom are college and high school graduates, are taking the opportunity and the spare time to have to read and study on their regular work, with a view to perfecting themselves for it on their return from the war."

"Although the books on technical subjects are largely supplied by the government, the need for fiction is also very imperative, especially lighter novels for the hospitals."

"It must be remembered that too many books cannot be given. There are many men and the books all idle moments and keep up the morale."

More than two hundred books have already been donated by Janesville people for the soldiers but many more are needed, was the statement of Miss Egan, and she especially urged all housewives to send their old books to the library before the end of spring housecleaning, so that all books may be forwarded to those camps where they are most urgently needed.

Several French fine arts now on exhibition at the library reading room and will be there for the next two weeks. These prints have been making the rounds of the state and have called forth expressions of admiration wherever they were seen.

THESE THIRTY-ODD FEET OF WARRIORS LEFT THREE MORE BROTHERS AT HOME

These five Marshall boys, all of one family, volunteered when the war began. All are over six feet tall, the tallest one measuring six feet three inches. It's quite a representation from one family. But Ben Marshall, internal revenue collector at Frankfort, says his home won't be so lonesome as one might think. For there are three more boys at home, aged twelve, fourteen and sixteen, and then the boys have five sisters.

ATHENA CLASS HELD MEETING YESTERDAY

Discuss Problem of Caring for Deaf and Feeble Minded Children of United States.

An interesting discussion of problems along the line of caring for the deaf and feeble minded was held by members of the Athena Class at their meeting on Thursday afternoon in the library. The topic of the deaf was in charge of Miss Peterson, and the fact was brought out that the first school for teaching them was established in Paris in 1760. There are about 14,000 deaf pupils now being taught in schools in the United States and there are about 80,000 deaf mutes in the population. There are claims of excellence in both the method of institutions and day schools in teaching this class of pupils. The industrial chances for them are many. The question of the care of the feeble minded and insane was led by Mrs. Wool. She brought out the fact that there were about 60,000 defectives in the United States and that the Binet and Simon test was used to determine the proficiency of children in the schools. Classes for backward pupils are now quite common.

The first school for this class of defective children was established by Dr. Samuel Howe in 1850. Heredity and alcoholism are said to be the main contributing causes. In the question of the insane the number was said to be slightly decreasing on account of more attention being paid to health. About forty percent of cases are said to be curable and in the hospitals they are very humanely treated. It is estimated that each patient in the insane hospitals costs the state about $175, and that there are now in Mendota 624 cases, and in the Northern hospital, 622 patients. These are less in number than have been in the institutions in a long time. Also it was noticed that there were 100 less prisoners in Waupun than the usual number.

Seeing Ahead.

There is always room for a man of force, and he makes room for many. A feeble man can see the farms that are fenced and tilled, the houses that are built. The strong man sees the possible houses and farms. His eye makes estates as fast as the sun breeds clouds.—Emerson.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen and am in love with two boys. One is a senior in high school and the other one is a junior. I have gone with the senior one for two years and the junior one for two years. I am deeply in love, but since I have been going with the other one I can't tell what to do. I hate to break the heart of the first one, but I can't be true to both of them and I don't want to go with both of them.

The older one is quiet and reserved, while the younger one is full of fun, like myself. Please tell me which one to go with as I can't go with both.

J. AND J.
You seem to care more for the younger one, but drop one and go exclusively with the other. A girl of seventeen is too young to have only one boy friend. If, however, you have decided to drop one of these boys it will be better to keep the friendship of the boy you like the best.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young lady seventeen years old and considered quite attractive. I am a senior in high school and recently have been receiving the attention of the principal.

How shall I tell him that I do not care for his attention without hurting his feelings? BRILLIANT.

If he annoys you while you are at school avoid him or excuse yourself because you are busy. In case he asks to call upon you and take you places make excuses. In time he will get the idea.

How To Strafe Your Liver
We give up. No use trying to conquer the liver. It is guilty of every crime charged by the doctors. We wonder, and ask forgiveness. We might have known all along that any glutton could tell his liver is at fault. The doctor knows instinctively that his salivary complexion is caused by his bad liver. Whether a doctor can find anything the matter with the liver or not, the liver is the part of the most human body that is always radically out of order. That is undoubtedly why Nature built in a liver. Without it mankind might be too proud.

All right, it is all wrong. Now, what are we going to do about it? We've got it. Listen. It takes two minutes a day—and that isn't measured against the time of the time most of us waste wool gathering.

The Morning Minute
In this minute, the minute you roll out of bed, you stand erect, pull in all the slack around your stomach, pull home your chin, turn in your toes, take half a foot apart, knees stiff as possible, shoulders down and back. You then take in all the loose air in your immediate vicinity and hold it. You then throw your hands up high as possible above your head, still holding your breath. Now swing in a wide arc to the right, and endeavor to touch both hands to floor right behind both heels, bending knees as you swing. As you like, let go of your lungful of air yet, but come right up against the first position and, still holding your breath, repeat on the opposite side. Come up in new position. This takes about five seconds. Do it eleven more times; then put on your clothes and see how good your liver feels.

The Evening Minute
By evening your liver will be seeking new worlds to conquer. Take off your clothes, put on your nightgown, say your prayers, and get under the cat. Place a blanket over your insteps to protect them and place your feet under the foot of the dresser or under a heavy chair. Under the bed, place your hands on your hips. Take a deep breath, hold it, and try to pull your body up to sitting posture and let it right down again, still holding your breath. That will be the beginning of your new world. Tomorrow, you may blow out the light. Tomorrow, we assure you, your liver will be on the job all day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
How to Light Your Reading.
Please describe the best way to have the light arranged for reading or other work at night. (T. N.)
ANSWER.—Avoid all lights that glare. Use frosted globes, or better, inverted globes, or best of all concealed lights which diffuse illumination by reflection from ceiling and walls.

Save light and expense by having light-colored ceilings and walls, and dark colors which absorb and waste light.

3. Sit in such position that your eyes do not see the source of light. Have the light strike the page of the work from above and one side, as over either shoulder. Never face the light, nor have it on a level with your work.

4. Headed by a Good Girl.
I am constantly harassed by the remark: "Child where on earth did you get your growth?" or "O, what a large girl!" Will you please tell me whether a girl seventeen years old, 56 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds, is really a large girl? (C. M.)
ANSWER.—No, she is just 100 percent girl. Probably her critics are lean and envious.

5. Fear Too Much.
Kindly tell me what effect coffee has on the system, and whether five cups a day are too much. (C. M.)
ANSWER.—Coffee is a mild stimulant on a nervous system, but it is not the kidneys. A cup or two for breakfast is wholesome for most individuals. Five cups a day is excessive and harmful in the long run.

6. A Big Decision Left To A Small Chance.
In one of Margate Deland's books, the heroine has been argued into an unhappy marriage by the man she does not love. He knows she wants her freedom, and knows that he has given to her. But so far as she is in such a man, he loves her very greatly, and the struggle between the better self which she has awakened in him, and the old selfish self which wants to keep her whether or no, so terrible. Finally he comes home one night and finding her in the room in a rage, saying: "Why didn't you light the lights?"

His rage was not because she did not light the lights, but because she had promised herself that if he found her sitting in the dark, he would offer her her freedom. (And he did.)

Presumptuous and Cowardly
I suppose leaving such things to chance is a peeping through of the old conception of the fates, but when you stop to think of it, it's rather presumptuous to expect Omnipotence to talk with us through foolish little signs like that. Isn't it a sort of cowardice not to make up one's mind to do whatever one's conscience and reason dictates and then to do it, without waiting for any such shoves?

Of course I am sure, that it is a bad thing to let oneself get into this habit of indecision, for it is next door to a disease.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

All unpleasant topics should be avoided in table conversation; even that of criticizing the food. Such matters should be taken up with the cook after the meal.

BRIDE: For your little home wedding, you can arrange a little arch of greenery in a convenient corner of a large room, and near the door to another room which can be left closed. From this closed room, the clergyman enters, followed by the bridegroom and his best man. The clergyman stands in the center of the arch, facing the guests. The bridegroom and his attendant stand at the left, facing toward the aisle, so that they can watch the bride's approach. At the same time, from the farthest corner of the room, the bridesmaid enters, followed by the bride, either alone or on her father's arm. As she nears the arch, the bridegroom steps forward, and she takes his left arm, and they stand facing the clergyman during the ceremony. The best man stands at the groom's right, and the maid at the left of the bride. At the close of the ceremony, the party face about and await the congratulations and good wishes of the guests.

ANGIE: It is quite improper for a girl of fifteen to accept presents of jewelry from a boy. Such gifts should be presented only to girls much older than you are, and by the young man they are engaged to marry.

COFFEE SOUFFLE.
One and one-half cups coffee, one-half cup milk, two-thirds of a cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two eggs, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one tablespoon gelatin.
Mix coffee, milk, gelatin and one-half of the sugar. Heat in double boiler. Add to remaining sugar, salt and yolks of eggs slightly beaten. Remove from fire. Stir in the vanilla and stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Pour in mold and chill. Serve with cream.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD.
Three cups sour or butter milk. Three level teaspoons soda. Three-quarters cup molasses. Three-quarters cup sugar. One heaping teaspoon salt. Six cup graham flour. One cup raisins.
Put the mixture into four greased one-pound baking powder or tea cans, cover with lids and bake twenty minutes more in slow oven.

ORANGE CAKE.
Cream one-half cup of butterine with one cup of sugar. Add one cup of wheat flour and one cup of rice or wheat bran. Add one cup of baking powder. Lastly, stir in the well-beaten white of an egg and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in layers. When cool spread with icing.
Boil together one cup of corn syrup, white, and one cup of water till it threads. Pour on to the stiffly beaten white of an egg the juice and one orange. This cake is inexpensive and delicious.

BEAN CROQUETTES.
One-half pound navy beans (cooked); salt and pepper to taste, one cup breadcrumbs, one egg, three to four tablespoons flour.
Pour the water from the beans, but do not throw it away. Mash the beans and add bread crumbs and seasoning, next the egg and flour enough to make the mixture stick together. With two spoons shape them and fry until a golden brown on the skillet. These can take the place of meat on Tuesday.

A CHEESE SOUFFLE.
Beat one whole egg into a cup of sweet milk. Butter a small baking dish and small bits of white bread, pour over some of the liquid and cover with thin slices of American cheese or grated cheese that is made from hardened bits. Cook the mixture in the dish is full, sprinkling cheese over the top and a few dabs of butter. Bake until light and brown and serve quickly. This is a good way to use any piece of bread. Nice for Sunday night supper. This is enough for four large helpings.

CHOCOLATE CREAM.
Mix five tablespoons cornstarch with one-fourth cup of honey and one-fourth cup of sugar. Dilute with cold milk and add two cups of boiling milk. Cook over hot water for ten minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly stir in the yolk of an egg. Melt one and one-half cups of hot water, stir till smooth and add to the cooked mixture. Then add the stiffly beaten white of the egg, together with two tablespoons of lemon juice. Chill in a mold and serve with top milk.

Her Great Adventure

by Zoe Beckley

A SHOVE FROM CIRCUMSTANCE.
The next day two things happened. Claire received a letter from home and a call from Dillon Whitney. The letter was from Claire's sister Angie. "Dear Claire," it read. "Why don't you come home? Things are better now. Mother's not near so cranky and now that the weather's warmer the boys are out of the house most of the time. Best is keeping company with Leonard Botta and I ain't saying anything about myself, but if everything goes on as it looks, there'll be a wedding around here next fall. There! I bet that wakes you up a little!"

"I met old Miss Cowan in the P. O. I asked her if you'd paid her back the money yet and she said that was a strictly personal matter between her and you but she didn't feel me any. I could tell you hadn't. Ma says you can't be making out very well or you'd have sent something home now and then. Claire, if you should see one of those silk sweaters that is not too expensive, could you send it out to me? I'll pay you when I can. Yours, affectionately, Angie."

Claire sighed. Money should go that very day to Miss Cowan. She must send the sweater to Angie. So, she took a little package to the post office. Not for anything should her family think she was not prospering. Besides, WAS she not prospering? Would she not soon be earning $3 a week, "just like the male clerks at Bender, Lane & Benders"? She hadn't quite thought out her answer to Lane yet, but the letter from home was a jog.

Then came Whitney. The young architect greeted Claire with a hearty manner behind which embarrassment lurked. He and Claire had not met for a week. Whitney was ready with excuses. "I had been in the city busy. He'd had no office boy. (Claire wondered grimly if this one, too, had left because he hadn't been paid.) There had been some theatricals at one of the studios and he had to help. She had thought of him lately."

—And said Whitney looked around the quiet and shabby living room with a backward air. "I hate to be the very dickens to mention it, but Grace and her friend have gone housekeeping again and Grace says if you COULD let her have back the table and chairs she torked over when you set up your castle here. She's sort of strapped for money, and if—"

"Why, my dear fellow!" interrupted Claire. "If THAT'S all! Why I thought you were at least going to tell me I was to be arrested for debt or something. I should say Grace can have them. I'll see to it at once."

"That's awfully decent of you, Claire. It's a shame to grab them back again, but—"

"And while I'm about it," cut in Claire, as the request had really helped her solve a problem—and perhaps it had, in just going to Miss a little old truck and send ALICE these things back to the kind folks that lent 'em. Sit down and help me make out a list. Now, let's see—the chest of drawers was from Ralph Arden's, what's Ralph's address? 38 Bank street? And Grace is on Greenwell avenue. She sent the rug, too! Those shelves came out of your office. I KNOW you sent them. The couch belongs to me. Who needs it most—I'm in a prodigious mood. I'm going to make some one a present, mattress cover and all!"

"Say—what's all the excitement? Quitting the simple life?"

Claire looked up from the list of names and addresses she had written, and nodded slowly biting the tip of her pencil.

"Going uptown. Getting rich in my new job. I never belonged somehow, did I—down here? You artists and poets find me dull. Oh, don't deny it. I know. I'm not Bohemian. I never fitted in with the rest. I—I just don't belong."

Whitney looked at her gravely, his face showing an odd mixture of regret and relief. "Claire," he said, taking her hand, "can't we go on?"

"I won't want to belong either, friend. Not THAT way. I think we both realize it, don't we?" Then in merrier voice she added: "Come Saturday and help me load the van. Just as you might need the place together. I'm glad you came in today, Dillon. It was a little shove of circumstance. It has helped me to decide something."

(To be continued.)

LONDONER SAYS AMERICA IS A WOMAN'S COUNTRY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, March 22.—"Why is the working man in America so well under control?" asked Sir Johnston Robertson, actor, at a meeting here to support the work of the Young Women's Christian Association. "Because there the working man is under the thumb of his wife."

He added that in America the working woman "is a highly intelligent woman; and the consequence is that Mr. Gompers is having more trouble with the vast and powerful unions all over America."

"Practically," said Mr. Johnston, "America is a woman's country and, in my view, a jolly good job, too."

Giving and Receiving.

You cannot give anything to anyone, you cannot give to any cause. From all this seeming giving you only take from experience the blessing of self-expression. You give only to yourself and in ministering you minister only to yourself. The man who takes from you must in turn give before he actually receives.—Exchange.

PROHIBITION URGED BY LOCAL SOCIETY

W. C. T. U. Meet at Home of Mrs. J. S. Taylor.—Several Interesting Addresses Given.

An interesting discussion of war time prohibition was given at a meeting of the W. C. T. U. society held at the home of Mrs. J. S. Taylor on Washington street Thursday afternoon. Letters had been sent from the organization to the governor of the different branches of the government asking for war time prohibition and the answers which were received were read at the meeting. Replies from the railroad commission, from the fuel administration and from the evidence and were read. The attitude of the branches of the administration seems to be that the question is now before the voters of the country and now is given to them a chance to show their patriotism. The question seems to be, food or beer for the country and our allies.

A review of the book by Private Peat was given by Mrs. Hocking, in which she quoted from his article in the March number of the American magazine. Musical numbers were rendered by Miss Ada Lewis, with Miss Louise Bennett as accompanist. A committee was appointed to help in the local dry campaign, consisting of Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Hocking and Mrs. J. S. Taylor. Plans for the campaign not yet being formulated, the committee were instructed to help the organization in every way possible.

Alkali in Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulisud cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly; and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulisud cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Step Lively! Corns Quit With "Gets-It"

The Great Corn-Locuser of the Age. Never Fails. Painless.

Watch my step! What the devil I go along with "right-of-care," even with corns, because I use "Gets-It," the painless, oil-free banana-leaf corn remover. I tried other ways, and I was blue.

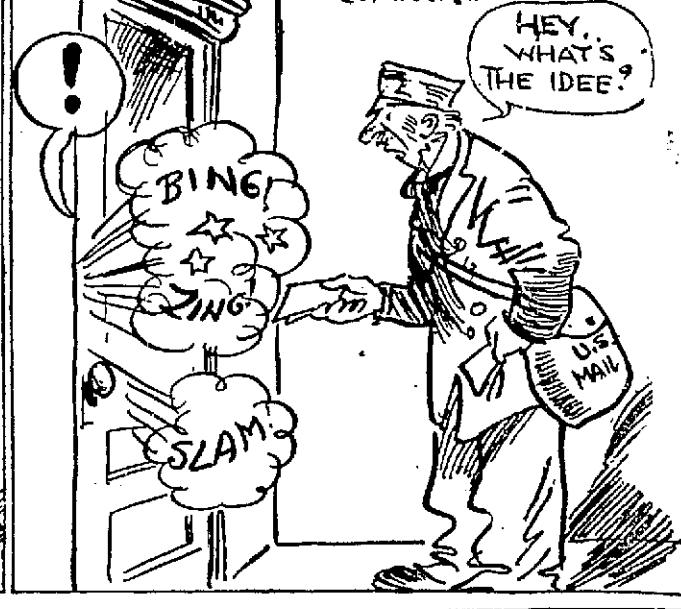

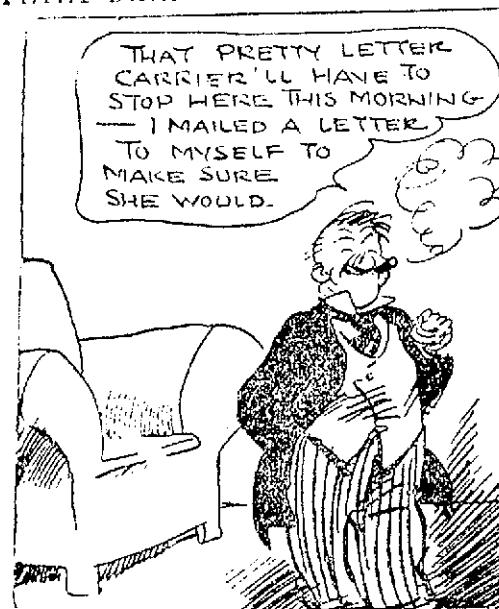

Corns Simply Can't Step Us, We "Gets-It!"

In the face and red in the toes. No more for me. "Gets-It." It never fails. Trench any corn or callus with two drops of "Gets-It," and "Gets-It" does the rest. It relieves the pain, stops cutting corns, makes them bleed, wrapping them up like packages and using sticky tape and salves. It removes any corn clear and clean, leaving the toe as smooth as your palm. You can wear those new shoes without pain, and be as frisky as your feet. It's great. "Gets-It."

"Gets-It" is sold at all druggists (you need pay no more than 25 cents a box) or sent on receipt of price by Dr. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Janesville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Smith, Gray Co., McGee & Bliss.

PETEY DINK—HE HAS A RIGHT TO BE SORE.

Janesville Man Saves Wife In Nick of Time

My wife was unable to eat even the lightest food, and had fallen down on a living skeleton. She could not even keep doctor's medicine on her stomach and was tormented with pain. On the recommendation of a friend I bought a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy and saw it all right now, and has gained forty pounds. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the intestinal worms from the intestinal tract and allows the system to function properly. It is a stomach, liver and intestinal ailment, for indigestion, constipation, one does will continue or money refunded.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with indigestion, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. 4, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Teamster's Life Saved; Peterson Is Happy

After Everything Else Fails Peterson's Ointment Cures Old and Running Sores, Eczema and Itches.

I was afflicted with a very severe sore on my leg for years. I am a teamster. I tried all medicines and salves, but without success. I tried Peterson's Ointment and it cured me. I couldn't sleep for many nights from pain. Doctors said I could not live for more than two years. Finally Peterson's Ointment was recommended to me and by its use the sore was entirely healed. Thankfully yours, William House, West Park, Ohio, care P. G. Keith, Box 129.

"I am proud of the above letter," says Peterson. "It makes me happy. I have hundreds of others that tell of wonderful cures of Eczema, Itches and skin diseases."

Peterson's Ointment is 50 cents at all druggists, and there isn't a broad-minded druggist in America that won't praise it. —Advertisement.

Our Boys in France and Home Protection

The men on the firing line represent the peak of our American youth. One in four of our boys at home was sick, repeated because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., says that we should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then, for cure at the nearest drug store, Auric (double strength). The cost is 60 cts. This "Auric" drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism. If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Auric three times a day for a month.

Send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered for four years with pain in my back. I tried everything there was out but they all failed to help me. I even went to a doctor and he could not cure my backache. A friend of mine advised me to try a package of Dr. Pierce's Auric Tablets, and so I did. I used two packages and the pains were gone. I am not telling any lies—the pain in my back was something terrible. As soon as I would bend over to get something from the floor I thought my whole back would burst. I would advise sufferers to try Auric and they will find results; they need not take my word for it."—WALTER CARLOS, 1035 Milwaukee Street.

"Why, yes; I guess so, pretty nigh. I s'pose there ain't much use to say more. If I was to tell you that I've tried to do for you and Steve in this—same as in everything else since I took this job—as if you were my own children you wouldn't believe it. If I was to tell you, Caroline, that I'd come to think an 'awful lot of you you wouldn't believe that either. I did hope that since our other misunderstanding was cleared up and you found I wasn't what you thought I was you'd come to me and ask questions afore passing judgment, but perhaps—"

And now she interrupted, bursting out at him in a blast of scorn which took his breath away.

"Oh, stop, stop!" she cried. "Don't say any more. You have insulted father's memory and defamed the man who slandered him. Isn't that enough? Why must you go on to prove yourself a greater hypocrite? We learned, my brother and I, today more than the truth concerning your friend. We learned that you have lied—yes, lied—and—"

"Steady, Caroline! Be careful. I wouldn't say what I might be sorry for later."

"Sorry, Captain Warren. You spoke of my misjudging you. I thought I had, and I was sorry. Today I learned that your attitude in that affair was a lie like the rest. You did not pay for Mr. Moriarty's accident. Mr. Dunn's money paid those bills. And you allowed the family—and me—to thank you for your generosity. Oh, I'm ashamed to be near you!"

"There, there! Caroline, be still. I—I shall not be still. I have been still altogether too long. You are our guardian. We can't help that. I suppose. Father asked you to be that for some reason, but did he ask you to live here, where you are not wanted, to shame us before our friends, ladies and gentlemen so far above you in every way, and to try to poison our minds against them and sneer at them when they are kind to us and even try to be kind to you? No, he did not. Oh, I'm sick of it all—your deceit and your hypocritical speeches and your pretended love for us! Love! Oh, if I could say something that would make you understand how thoroughly we despise you and how your presence, ever since you forced it upon Steve and me, has disgraced us! If I only could! I—I—"

She had been near to tears ever since Mrs. Corcoran Dunn, in the kindness of her heart, told her the truth that afternoon. But pride and indignation had prevented her giving way. Now, however, she broke down.

"Oh, oh, Steve!" she cried and, turning to her brother, sobbed hysterically on his shoulder. "Oh, Steve, what shall we do?"

Stephen put his arm about her waist. "It's all right, sis," he said soothingly. "Don't cry before him! I guess," with a glance at his uncle, "you've said enough to make even him understand—at last."

Captain Elisha looked gravely at the pair. "I guess you have," he said slowly. "I guess you have, Caroline. Anyhow, I can't think of anything you've left out. I could explain some things, but what's the use? And," with a sigh, "you may be right in a way. Perhaps I shouldn't have come here to live. If you'd only told me plain after just how you felt I'd—maybe I'd—but there! I didn't know—I didn't know. You see, I thought—"

"However, I guess that part of your troubles is over. But," he added firmly, "wherever I am or wherever I go you must understand that I'm your guardian, just the same. I considered a long spell after I took the place, and I never abandoned a ship yet once I took command of her. And I'll stick to this one! Yes, sir. I'll stick to it in spite of the devil—or the Dunks, either. I'll you and your brother are of age I'm going to look out for you and your interests and your money, and nothing nor nobody shall stop me. As for fore—I'm your company on you, though, that—well, that's different. I can't let you not have to worry any more. Good night."

He thrust his hands into his pockets and walked slowly from the library.

CHAPTER XII.

A Surprise For Pearson.

STEPHEN, the "man of the family," was the only member of the household, servants excepted, who slept soundly that night. Conscious of having done his duty in the affair with Pearson and his guardian and somewhat fatigued by the disagreeable task of soothing his hysterical sister, he was slumbering peacefully at 8 the next morning when awakened by a series of raps on his bedroom door.

"Ah! What? Well, what is it?" he demanded, testily opening his eyes. "Edwards, is that you? What the devil do you mean by making such a row?"

The voice which answered was not the butler's, but Caroline's.

"Steve! Oh, Steve!" she cried. "Do get up and come out! Come, quick! Something has happened."

"Happened? What is it?"

"I can't tell you here. Please dress and come to me as quick as you can."

Stephen found his sister standing by the library window, a letter in her hand. She looked troubled and anxious.

"Oh, Steve," she exclaimed, "he's gone!"

"Gone? Who?"

"Captain Warren. He's gone."

"Gone? Gone where? Caro, you don't mean he's dead?"

"No; he's gone—gone and left us."

Her brother's expression changed to incredulous joy.

"What?" he shouted. "You mean he's quit, cleared out, left here for good?"

"Yes."

"Hurrah! Excuse me while I gloat! Hurrah! We got it through his skull at last! Is it possible? But—but hold on! Perhaps it's too good to be true. Are you sure? How do you know?"

"He says so. See."

She handed him the letter. It was addressed to "My Dear Caroline" and in it Captain Elisha stated his intentions succinctly. After the plain speaking of the previous evening he should not, of course, burden them with his society any longer. He was leaving that morning, and as soon as he "located permanent moorings somewhere else" would notify his niece and nephew of his whereabouts.

"What?" he shouted. "You mean he's quit?"

For, as I told you, although I shall not impose my company on you, I am your guardian same as ever. I will see that your allowance comes to you regular, including enough for all household bills and pay for the hired help, and so on. If you need any extra at any time let me know, and if they seem to be right and proper I will send money for them. You will stay where you are, Caroline, and Steve must go back to college right away. Tell him I say so, and if he does not I shall begin reducing his allowance according as I wrote him. He will understand what I mean. And, Caroline, I want you and Steve to feel that I am your anchor to windward, and when you get in a tight place, if you ever do, you can depend on me. Last night's talk has no bearing on that. Whatever. Goodbye, then, until my next.

ELISHA WARREN.

Stephen read this screed to the end, then crumpled it in his fist and threw it angrily on the floor.

"The nerve!" he exclaimed. "He seems to think I'm a sailor on one of his ships, to be ordered around as he sees fit. I'll go back to college when I'm good and ready, not before."

Caroline shook her head. "Oh, no," she said. "You must go today. He's right, Steve: it's the thing for you to do. He and I were agreed as to that. And you wouldn't stay and make it harder for me, would you, dear?"

He growled a reluctant assent. "I suppose I shall have to go," he said sullenly. "My allowance is too beastly small to have him cutting it, and the old shark would do that very thing. He'd take delight in doing it, confound him! Well, he knows what we think of him. That's some comfort."

She did not answer. He looked at her curiously.

"Why, hang it all, Caro," he exclaimed in disgust, "what are you? Blessed if I shan't begin to believe you're sorry he's gone. You act as if you were."

"No, I'm not. Of course I'm not. I'm—I'm glad. He couldn't stay, of course. But I'm afraid I can't help feeling that you and I were too harsh last night. We said things—dreadful things."

"Be, hang'd! We didn't say half enough. Oh, don't be a fool, Caro! I was just beginning to be proud of your grit. And now you want to take it all back. Answer me, now, Are you sorry he's gone?"

"No. No, I'm not, really. But I—I feel somehow as if—as if everything was on my shoulders. You're going away and he's gone and—what is it, Edwards?"

The butler entered with a small parcel in his hand.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Caroline," he said. "I should have given you this last evening. It was by your place at the table. I think Captain Warren put it there, miss."

He bowed and retired. The girl sat turning the little white box in her hands.

"He left it for me," she said. "What can it be?"

Her brother snatched it impatiently. "Why don't you open it and find out?"

he demanded. "Perhaps it's his latchkey. Here! I'll do it myself."

He cut the cord and removed the cover of the little box. Inside was the jeweler's leather case. He took it out and pressed the spring. The cover flew up.

"Whew!" he whistled. "It's a present. And rather a decent one, too, by gad! Look Caro!"

He handed her the open case. She looked at the chain spread carefully on the white satin lining. Inside the cover was fitted a card. She turned it over and read: "To my niece, Caroline. With wishes for many happy returns and much love, from her Uncle Elisha Warren."

She sat gazing at the card. Stephen bent down, read the inscription and then looked up into her face.

"What?" he cried. "I believe—you're not crying! Well, I'll be hanged! Sis, you are a fool!"

The weather that morning was fine and clear. James Pearson, standing by the window of his rooms at the boarding-house, looking out at the snow-covered roofs sparkling in the sun, was miserable. When he retired, the night before it was with a solemn oath to forget Caroline Warren altogether; to put her and her father and the young cad, her brother, utterly from his mind, never to be thought of again.

Why—why had he been so weak as to yield to Captain Elisha's advice?

Why had he not acted like a sensible, self-respecting man, done what he knew was right and persisted in his refusal to visit the Warrens? Why? Because he was an idiot, of course—a hopeless idiot, who had got exactly what he deserved! Which bit of philosophy did not help make his reflections less bitter.

After breakfast he went to his room, seated himself at his desk and took the manuscript of his novel from the drawer.

He was still sitting there, twirling an idle pencil between his fingers, when he heard steps outside his door. Some one knocked.

"Well, what is it?" he asked.

His landlady answered. "Mr. Pearson," she said, "may I see you?"

He threw down the pencil and, rising, walked to the door and opened it. Mrs. Hepton was waiting in the hall. She seemed excited.

"Mr. Pearson," she said, "will you step downstairs with me for a moment? I have a surprise for you."

"A surprise? What sort of a surprise?"

"Oh, a pleasant one—at least I think it is going to be a pleasant one for all of us. But I'm not going to tell you what it is. You must come down and see for yourself."

On the second floor Mrs. Hepton stopped and pointed.

The housewife, unable to find a woman to help with the housecleaning advertised for a man to do chores around the house. The advertisement was answered by a colored man.

"Are you married?" she asked.

"Yas'm," replied the applicant, "but mah wife is out of a job. Dat's why I've got to shift for mahself."

Melvin had just returned from college. His education was evident in his every remark, and his mother appreciated it.

"Mother, shall I extinguish the light?" he asked his mother the first night.

"Why, now, what do you mean?" she asked.

"That means, shall I put the light out?" he said.

"Oh, surely my son."

The next morning he asked: "Mother, may I read you a narrative?"

"Why, what does that mean?" asked the mother.

"Simply that I would like to read you a short tale," answered Melvin.

"Surely, read it," answered the mother.

Here is Why it is Our Patriotic Duty to Use More Oleomargarine

OUR export of dairy products during 1917 was thirteen times more than the average for the three previous years. And we couldn't ship all that our allies needed at that. Even if our dairying facilities were up to normal—which they were not—these figures mean a shortage here at home of 220,000,000 pounds unless we use something else equally nourishing.

We foresaw the need of alternatives for the food fats we are shipping to our troops and allies and have placed on the market two new food products. By using these products on your table and in your kitchen, you make it easier for those who are fighting our battles on foreign soil.

Vegetable Oil Oleomargarine

Veribest Oleomargarine is made from Oleo Oil, Neutral, Vegetable Oil, Milk and Salt—just these pure materials and nothing more. And our productive resources make it possible to obtain them in purest and most perfect form. From the choicest fats, we press the pure Oleo Oil and Neutral. These and other nutritious Vegetable oils are churned with milk from the dairy farms under supervision of Chicago's Board of Health.

For families desiring colored oleomargarine for table use, dealers will give free capsules of pure vegetable coloring matter with directions how to use.

Nut margarine was introduced into Europe years ago as a war necessity. It remained because it was well-liked. Nut-ola, a similar product more scientifically made, will do the same here. Let your household be among the first to learn of its merits.

There is no secret about Nut-ola. It is made from the pure oil of coconuts and peanuts, rich, pasteurized milk from dairies under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Board of Health, and selected salt. No artificial preservative used—or needed in so pure a product.

Here is Why it is Common Sense to Use More Oleomargarine

THE American nation must practice thrift. And where better can we learn than from the farmers in the rich dairying districts of Holland and Denmark? Over there the farmer, knowing its wholesomeness and high food value, uses Oleomargarine on his table and sells his butter.

In Denmark the Oleomargarine consumption is 32 pounds per year for each person. In Holland it is 20 pounds. But over here, where the real need for conservation is equally great, we consume only 2 1/4 pounds per person per year. Use Oleomargarine in your kitchen and on your table, save money and help to win the war.

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.
First Quarter. Lesson XII. Mark VI. 32-44. March 25, 1918.
Golden Text: The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many. Matthew XX. 28.
JESUS MINISTERING TO THE MULTITUDE.

Crucial times had come in the public life of Jesus. His fore-runner had been put to death and the plot thickened to destroy the Master also. On the other hand a fanatical party wished to make him king, an idea absolutely irreconcilable with the nature of his mission in the world. Prudence suggested temporary retirement from public life. On the other hand Jesus' greatness had been the drain upon all his powers of body, mind and spirit by his discourses, private instructions and miracles of healing. So the boat which had been chartered for Jesus' return was employed to put the weary Master beyond the reach of the multitude. It was headed toward the least populated shore. Glances cast at the departure had been made by the multitude. Both the start and the destination were detected. An ever increasing throng hurried toward the head of the lake. So when Jesus' boat ran its keel on the pebbly beach there stood five thousand men to mention women and children.

So far from being irritated by the follies of his plans, Jesus' heart was touched to pity at sight of such a shepherdless flock and he began at once to instruct them in many of the doctrines of grace. In an absorbing interest of the theme neither Teacher nor taught observed how the sun was dipping toward the Western horizon.

But the commissary among the apostles suddenly awoke to the situation. Five regiments! and no stores on hand nor any country on which to forage. Jesus' questions were designed to test and stimulate the apostles' faith. Their answers betray phenomenal obtuseness. "Thirty-three dollars wouldn't be enough to buy bread! and we haven't even that much," such a response! after all they had heard and seen! Jesus might have repeated his gentle rebuke, "Why! haven't you got faith even yet?" Under conditions like these the Master prepared to work what in some respects is his most significant and remarkable miracle.

The material basis was paltry in the extreme. "One poor fisher's rude and scanty store." There is a vivid descriptive touch in the original which does not appear in our version. Under Jesus' direction the confused throng was resolved in the order of a French parterre. He had them recline pairwise so that they looked in their high-colored turbans for all the world like flower beds with green turf intervening. After the cheerful grace which the Master never omits, he puts a morsel of bread and fish in the hand of each apostle and sends him forth to serve. What each breaks off is larger than what remains. But that which remains is undiminished and all are fed and filled.

As a lesson in frugality the unused fragments are gathered up. Each disciple holds in his hands the tangible evidence of the reality and magnitude of the miracle wrought.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

On the return of the apostles from their first and in a sense their experimental missionary tour there is lovely evidence of the implicit confidence which maintained between them and the Master. They told him what they had done and what they had taught. They were sure of his sympathy. If he needed correction they knew it would be done in love.

It is so the disciples of today may come to the Master, for the first disciples have no monopoly of Jesus' sympathy. To "tell Jesus" is the natural recourse of the Lord's followers now as then. It was a boy who helped Jesus to work the miracle of feeding the multitude. The boy followed more provident than his elders had provided himself with a lunch. The moment he heard that Jesus needed it he ran to give it to him, feeling honored in having anything the Master could use. Not in vain had he listened to the persuasive voice. The lesson of it is that the Master can still utilize the smallest gifts and gifts. A nickel is five cents more than nothing.

Let the people not sit down but rather to eat as the Oriental custom is like so many banqueting parties. Hundreds and fifties thus preserved order, making the distribution easy and preventing any obtaining more than their share as would have been possible in case there had been confusion.

The multitude was really fed and Jesus' sympathy for them was genuine, but none the less the whole scene was pictorial. It teaches the Master's followers in every age that unless they care for men's bodily wants they cannot hope to touch the moral

War and Childhood
America will not make the mistake of Europe in regard to its children. For the effects of that mistake were too glaring and too immediate; and America is thus warned against it. The National Child Welfare Bureau, with Miss Julia Lathrop, as chief, is well organized, and alert child-welfare work has passed through its beginning stages, and the women's club organizations are ready and experienced in carrying out a definite program.

Rock County Organized
This work has been assigned to the Woman's Committee of the State Council of Defense, which has divided it among counties. The woman's committee of Rock County elected Mrs. W. E. Green, of Evansville, to act as County Chairman of child welfare.

The work will be done in Evansville by the joint city health committee, composed of Mrs. E. M. Patterson, Mrs. Edna Norton and Mrs. J. P. Waddell, of the Mothers' Club, Mrs.

Retta Johnson, Mrs. Eva French and Miss Maggie Gillies of the Afternoon Club, and Mrs. Lewis Spencer of the Woman's Literary Club. As the preliminary step in the campaign, the National Bureau asks for a census of all children six years and under with weight and height, and wherever practical of all school children. This examination and measuring of the public school children will begin next Monday, in our city, by Miss Amanda Needles, R. N., who has been engaged by the Anti-Tuberculosis committee of the Mothers' and Others' club. Miss Martha Holmes will act as secretary to Miss Needles in making up the reports.

OFFICERS WILL SINGLE- WITH PRIVATES AT BAIL.

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

New York, March 22.—The largest military ball ever held in this city will be given by the members of the Seventy-seventh division, national army, at the Seventh regiment armory here tonight. Thousands of soldiers arrived in town early today from Camp Upton, N. Y., where the division is encamped, to attend.

The proceeds of the ball will be used to construct the Camp Upton community hall, which will be used for drilling purposes, military instruction, regimental singing and indoor sports.

The cost of the building will be $100,000. Of this sum donations of $60,000 have already been raised or pledged.

The ball marks a new departure in military life. It is the first military ball where officers have invited the privates to join with them in dancing, and shows the democratization which is in progress in the army.
